

UN Secretary Will Try to Control Debate

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld tried today to direct the U.N. debate on the Middle East away from big power name calling toward shaping a constructive plan to stabilize the area.

Hammarskjöld offered a broad plan for peace and economic improvements in the crisis-ridden region at a 35-minute opening meeting Friday of the General Assembly's third emergency special session. The assembly recessed until Wednesday, when debate will begin.

The secretary general proposed that Arab nations stop interfering with each other and the big powers let them alone politically while helping them economically. His plan was unveiled while the United States and the Soviet Union still were working on proposals. Washington talk has been along lines similar to Hammarskjöld's plan.

Soviet Delegates Arkady A. Sobolev demanded immediate action to get U.S. troops out of Lebanon and British forces out of Jordan. "Their presence constitutes a danger to world peace," he contended in repeating the line in which Soviet Premier Khrushchev first wanted a summit conference and then switched last Tuesday to demanding the assembly meeting.

U.S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge in reply accused Russia of wanting the session as a propaganda sounding board. He expressed regret that Sobolev had introduced the discordant note and said Washington hopes the assembly can come to grips with basic Middle Eastern problems.

Sobolev spoke after Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, assembly president, opened the session with the traditional plea that delegates would refrain "from making unworthy propaganda and will be scrupulous to avoid pieties of abuse."

'Torch' Admits He's Caught in Own Trap

By DWIGHT L. PITKIN

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Atty. Gen. Paul L. Adams said today torch victim Frank Kierdorf admitted on his deathbed that he suffered his fatal burns in setting fire to a dry cleaning store in Flint.

Adams said that the Teamsters Union business agent also indicated that his uncle, Herman Kierdorf, 80, was at the scene. The uncle now is subject of a nationwide search.

The deathbed questioning of Frank Thursday was conducted by Tony Spiel, chief of criminal investigation for the Oakland County prosecutors office.

Adams said Kierdorf was asked to communicate by raising or lowering his arms because he was unable to talk. The dying man also was asked about other Teamster officials but Adams had no comment on his responses.

Adams said: "We are viewing the statement with considerable skepticism. The doctor was doubtful he could communicate. But of course we will follow through with any leads."

Adams disclosed that Frank Flisimmons, vice president of Teamster Local 299 in Detroit, is wanted for questioning because he reportedly turned over title of a union Cadillac to Herman Kierdorf which provided funds for Kierdorf's flight.

Local 299 is the home local of James R. Hoffa, international president of the Teamsters Union. Adams told newsmen he is convinced that Frank, 56, was caught in a blazing trap trying to set a Flint dry cleaning shop on fire.

Social Security Benefits in Hempstead County During a Year Total Over $763,968

Old-Age, survivors, and disability insurance benefits are being paid in Hempstead county at the rate of $763,968 a year, according to Oils A. Blackwood, manager of the Texarkana, Ark. social security district office.

This is an increase of about 7% over last year. "Blackwood said: "Our studies have shown that many of these aged people, widows and orphans have little or no resources," he pointed out. "For something like 9% social security benefits, received as an earned right, are the only cash income."

Blackwood also stressed that while the benefits are intended primarily as basis for individual economic security, the payment of social security benefits at the rate of $763,968 a year in Hempstead county helps business generally because most of the money spent immediately on food, clothing and other necessities.

Payments to a retired worker average about $65 per month, he said. The average for a widow with two young children is $145. The maximum payment for a retired couple is $162.80 a month, and the maximum for a family is $200.

"There were several reasons for the increase in benefits over last year," Blackwood said. "One was the payment of benefits to people who were brought under the law for the first time in recent years — self-employed farmers, for example. Other reasons for the increase were the reduction in the retirement age to 62 for women and the starting of disability insurance benefits to disabled people 50 or over."

The table below shows the number and amount of each type of benefit being paid in Hempstead county each month.

Retired Workers number 342 and payments are $41,386.
Wife or Husband total 334 receive $3,564.
Widow or Widowers total 110 get $4,018.
Mothers with children number 38, receive $1,620.
Children total 244; they are paid $6,618.

Dependent Parents number 8, and receive $412.
Disability Cases are 17, payments are $1,240.
For the entire state of Arkansas, social security payments at the end of 1957 were being paid to 119,416 beneficiaries at the rate of $1,886,337 per month.

They Met earlier Than Expected

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — Two men met about an hour earlier than they had planned Thursday night. The cars they were driving swerved each other 30 miles south of where they were to meet.

The drivers were Jack Hope, comedian Bob Hope's brother and business manager, and Leroy W. Thomas.

They had agreed by telephone earlier in the day to meet at the naval base to plan a Bob Hope show.

A highway patrolman said the collision occurred when Hope pulled out of a safe three miles north of where Thomas station wagon was passing. Both cars were damaged. Neither driver was hurt.

Probers Seek Data on Auto Used by 'Torch'

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate racket investigators sought details today of the hurry-up bargain sale of a Teamsters Union automobile reportedly used in Michigan's fatal human torch burning.

Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark) of the special Senate committee ordered the probe Friday following testimony that the automobile was sold for no money down to Herman Kierdorf, uncle of the torch victim and former aide to Teamster President James R. Hoffa.

Kierdorf's nephew, Frank Kierdorf, 56, business agent for a Pontiac, Mich., Teamster local, died Thursday after indicating to police he suffered his burns in setting fire to a Flint, Mich., dry-cleaning shop Sunday night.

Michigan authorities said the nephew also indicated his uncle, Herman, 68, was at the fire scene. The elder Kierdorf disappeared Monday and is sought on a warrant charging possession of a silence-charged gun.

Testimony on the sale of the union-owned Cadillac climaxed a fast-moving day in the committee's inquiry into allegations that Hoffa's giant union is involved with underworld characters in a nationwide plot to dominate business and labor. The hearings are in recess until Tuesday.

In other developments Friday: 1. George Francis Heid, a disgruntled former Teamster, testified that he had lied under oath — because of threats — as a defense witness in the 1956 Minneapolis trial that convicted one of Hoffa's aides on bombing charges.

U. S. Envoy Reports on Nasser Talk

By RICHARD KASISCHKE
CAIRO (AP) — Showing no outward resentment at the initial snubbing he got from President Nasser, special U.S. envoy Robert Murphy said today their four-hour conference was "very friendly, very satisfactory."

Nasser kept the U.S. deputy undersecretary of state waiting until mid-evening Wednesday before he would receive him. But Murphy said they had a "very thorough, very friendly, very satisfactory conversation ranging over a large number of subjects."

"President Eisenhower sent Murphy to the Middle East on the heels of the U.S. landing in Lebanon to help work out a political settlement among the Lebanese and to survey the U.S. position in the area. The American diplomat flew today to Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital, and goes to Greece tomorrow."

"I feel personally I now have a much better appreciation and understanding of the problems here," Murphy said. "It was a very satisfactory evening."

Asked by Egyptian reporters his opinion of Nasser, Murphy replied, "I have a very high estimate of his ability and knowledge. I have a very satisfactory appreciation of him."

In neighboring Jordan, chartered planes of the Jordanian airline were flying British troops from the port of Aqaba to Amman to reinforce the 2,500 Tommies bolstering King Hussein's regime.

Dealer in Dope Is Arrested

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — A 40-year-old Missourian described by federal narcotics agents as a million-dollar dealer in high-grade heroin was arrested Thursday night near here.

Jack R. Clayton of Blue Springs was jailed on a federal complaint charging him with peddling heroin in Arkansas, Florida, Tennessee and Texas. The complaint was filed at Tyler, Tex.

Clayton didn't resist federal and county officers who seized him at the farm home of relatives.

Man 80, Turns in Driver's License

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — W. J. Schell, 80, of North Arlington sent a letter to the state motor vehicle director, Frederick J. Gasser Jr., in which he turned in his drivers license.

Gasser, who released the letter, quoted Schell as saying that he has had 30 years of driving without a serious accident but now is in the category of drivers whose reflexes have slowed down.

"I fully believe it's time to say bye-bye to Father Gms and Grandpa Wheel," the letter said.

Bonding Firm to Pay Part of Shortage

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A bonding company has agreed to pay $12,107 of a $20,109 shortage in the Carroll County treasurer's office, state Comptroller Kelly Cornell said yesterday.

He said the U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore told him it would send a check for the sum.

Treasurer Edwin L. Chynuph has been indicted by the Carroll County Grand Jury in connection with the shortage which an audit report said had occurred since 1956.

Cornell said the Baltimore company issued bonds to protect against such losses in 1957 and 1958. He said Western Surety Co. of Sioux Falls, S.D., had bonded the treasurer's office in 1958 and still was investigating the shortage.

Cornell said the Baltimore company's representatives have checked the audit report which showed the shortage, Cornell said.

An official of the Comptroller's office said Western Surety was liable for $7,912 of the shortage.

No Bond to Be Made for Slayer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — No attempt will be made to obtain bond for Connie Nicholas, divorcee accused of killing business executive Forrest Tel, during the month or so it takes a Marion County grand jury to consider her case.

Frank A. Symmes, attorney for the blue-eyed, 42-year-old woman, said he thought it would be cruel to obtain a short period of freedom for his client if the grand jury should send her back to jail.

Mrs. Nicholas failed in a suicide attempt after her lover of 15 years had died of pistol bullet wounds July 31. She appeared in Indianapolis Municipal Court Thursday, accompanied by a nurse, and pleaded innocent to murder.

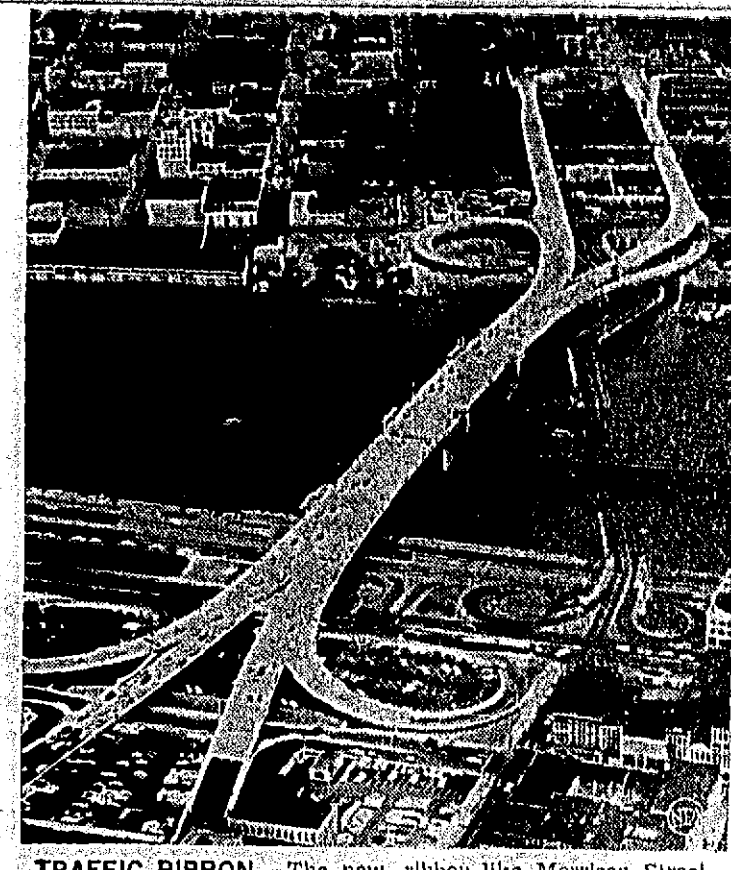

Under Indiana law, a person can be brought to trial for murder only on a grand jury indictment. The murder affidavit was merely a holding charge pending grand jury investigation.

Prosecutor John G. Tindler said it would be at least a month before the grand jury can take up the case.

Mrs. Nicholas was returned to her hospital bed.

'Little Gem' as Applied to Household Book Not So Little

By MARY ANITA LASEIER

In reference to literary works, the expression, "a little gem," is often used. Such a gem came into my possession recently, but at 727 pages in length "The Household Gem Cyclopaedia" could hardly be termed "little."

However large in size, this reference library for the home was even larger in valuable information for the homemaker of 1891, the publication date of this copy I read.

The largest portion of the book dealt with cooking and other food preparation, but the Miscellaneous Department is what intrigued me. There, the reader found such things as sections on "Physiology and Medicine," "Synonyms" and "Anthonyms," the Metric System and a Calendar for the Century.

Such a calendar was almost out of date before it was printed, but it was a table of figures with instructions for locating the desired date. The "know" system of stendered time was explained with clock faces showing Eastern, Central, Mountain, Pacific, as well as Intercolonial and Washington Times.

Weights and Measures in ordinary use among housekeepers gave instructions by the wineglass, coffee-cupful, tumblerful, and grill, as well as by the teaspoonful, tablespoonful, pint and quart.

Of interest to working men and women was a quick method for computing wages on the basis of 10 hours of labor per day. In 1880, the largest number of women workers (281,928) were dressmakers, milliners, etc., and the smallest number (75) were lawyers.

It was explained that a man's working life is divided into four decades and that intelligent judgment are strongest between 40 and 50 years ago.

According to figures in the Cyclopaedia, the population of Arkansas in relation to all states and territories of the U.S. in 1880 was 24th, so our state has maintained its population of growth. However, in that census year there were only four cities in Arkansas over 2,000 in population: Ft. Smith (11,921), Hot Springs (8,073), Little Rock (22,496), and Pine Bluff (9,952).

A wealth of beauty is found in the book's Dictionary of Prose and Poetical Quotations. It seemed ironical to find the author's name following this quotation, though: "The man of wisdom is the man of years." Young.

To me the best of these quotations is by Lord Byron who wrote: "All who joy would win must share its happiness was born a twin."

A large portion of the Cyclopaedia dealt with Etiquette, but that is another column. When I write of it, it will be because: "Knowledge is of two kinds: We know where we are ourselves, or we know where we can find information about it." Johnson.

PSC Ruling for Utilities Hurts Highway Dept.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The issue of whether highway users or utilities should pay for relocating utilities equipment in highway construction was argued before a committee of the Arkansas Legislative Council yesterday.

A Highway Department spokesman said any diversion of road funds to reimburse utilities for such work would seriously hamper Arkansas' highway program.

A spokesman for electric co-operatives said utilities and co-ops lack funds for relocation.

The two positions were presented at a public hearing before the Roads and Highways Committee of the Legislative Council. The committee is trying to determine whether the state should reimburse utilities for relocation.

Rep. Marion H. Crank of Little Rock, chairman of the committee, said it would make a report on the matter to the full council next Friday.

Sen. Russell Elwood of Siloam Springs backed a measure in the 1957 Legislature to have the state make such reimbursements to utilities. But the Legislature took no action and deferred the proposal to the council for study.

Tom Lovel, attorney for the Arkansas Telephone Assn., said the wider right of way required for roads taken into the state system under the Milum Act could have drastic effects on small local telephone firms. He said that in some cases it could mean moving half of a company's telephone lines.

Leland F. Leatherman, attorney for the Arkansas Rural Electric Co-operatives, said the co-ops were willing to share a limited amount of relocation expenses. But he said they cannot pay an unlimited amount without a rate increase.

C. W. Hardy, utility engineer for the Highway Department, said passage of a bill authorizing state reimbursements for relocations would in effect subsidize the utility firms and would hurt the highway program.

George H. Benjamin, chairman of the Arkansas Highway Users Conference, and Frank M. Tipton, director of the Arkansas Automobile Assn., went on record as opposed to such a measure.

THE STORY: Lieutenant Morrison is getting an appraisal of the suburbanites who live near the Adams home. Mrs. Edna Bergerson, a widow, tells the officer about each of the nearby families. Bruce Adams, 13, was brutally murdered and Morrison is trying to find a motive.

"He is sensitive about his affliction. I think his back is twisted as he walks with a decided limp."

"What's wrong with him?"

"He was in an auto accident some years ago. I believe his back was fractured or at least badly injured. It went into some kind of spinal disease that grows progressively worse. There is nothing they can do about it."

MRS. BERGERSON waited a long time before speaking. "I see very little of Helen Verhey. She works, and when she gets home there are things in the house she has to do. When I do see her she's always pleasant and she looks like a fashion plate. She works for one of those exclusive dress shops, so I guess dressing is part of her job. They haven't lived here very long. About eight months, but I've never heard either of them say where they came from."

"I know that much better. He works in the yard and we've talked quite a bit while we were gardening. He's charming, always witty and gay and there's no denying his good looks. But..." her voice trailed off.

"But what?" Morrison inquired.

"I've always had the feeling that he was a—, oh how shall I put it. Phony is the word I want, but I hate to use it."

"Why a phony?"

"There are many little things. His clothes for instance. Bob calls him 'The Dude.' He wears good slacks to garden in, and even if they are both working, and have no children to worry about, that's just silly. It costs $1.29 to get a pair of slacks cleaned, and to wear them to garden is just plain foolish."

Morrison suppressed a smile at this typically feminine reasoning. But was forced to agree with Bob Verhey had impressed him as somewhat of a dude, too.

"Are you acquainted with the Cornwells?" he asked.

"Strictly. They're not particularly friendly."

"Have you any reason to think they might have disliked Bruce?"

"Good heavens, no. No. The only time he is ever out of the house is for about five minutes, just after dark. He takes a short walk then."

"After dark?" Morrison's eyebrows rose questioningly.

"She pulled a piece of lace to back from her lip and nodded."

enjoyment came from the children.

Months of watching had given Cornwell a keen insight into the personality of each child.

The Adams boys had always confused Cornwell, because they were no different. If someone could hate a child enough to do murder, and the thought was incomprehensible to Cornwell, he would have expected it to be Clyde, or his quiet brother Bruce.

CHAPTER XI

The elderly man put his knitting aside, flexed his hands and looked at the quiet street. In some of the houses the curtains were drawn, even though it was midmorning. The only person he could see was a police officer, sitting in a car parked at the curb. The unaccustomed silence gave him a feeling of depression, so with an effort he heaved himself from the chair and made his labored way to the kitchen.

"Rosa," he said as he lowered himself into another chair, "is there any coffee made?"

Rosa Cornwell turned from the sink where she was pelling potatoes.

"Set down, I'll heat it up for you."

She was an enormous woman, but she moved with a light step. Even at 53, there was no trace of gray in her glossy, straight black hair, and her thick olive skin was unlined.

Hair brushing was a ritual with her. Ten minutes every morning, during which she applied a pomade to insure the absolute smoothness of the heavy braids she fashioned into a coronet high on her head, and another 10 minutes at night.

It seemed to Luke Cornwell that she devoted so much time to her appearance to compensate for his own untidiness. Try as he might, his undependable mumbled seldom permitted him to give himself a close shave, and oftentimes food would slip from the fork, leaving grease stains on his clothes. Unavoidable, but nonetheless unpleasant.

"There's a police car at the Fergusons'," he remarked, as Rosa busied herself at the stove.

"They'll most likely come here, too."

She returned to the sink and gave an exclamation of annoyance.

"I guess you are right. He's walking toward our house now." She had dried her hands and was waiting when Morrison rang the bell.

"Yes, what is it?" she asked through a partially opened door. Morrison had always thought of brown as a warm color, but the brown eyes that looked at him were harder and colder than he would have thought possible. The tone of her voice did nothing to soften the icy inquiry.

"I'm Lieutenant Morrison from police headquarters," he said, showing her his credentials. "I would like to talk to you and Mr. Cornwell about the murder of the Adams boy."

"We discussed it with your men last night. There is nothing we can add."

"The police have found that it is more advantageous to have more than one person hear a statement. It lessens the chance of mistakes. May I come in?"

The request was superfluous. His manner showed he intended to have his way.

"If you wish," she said ungraciously, and held the door open.

"Good day, sir," Cornwell had returned to his chair and sat holding a trembling hand out to Morrison.

"Mr. Cornwell, I'm Lieutenant Morrison."

Morrison sat on a dull beige davenport. The room gave the impression that everything in it, including the Cornwells, had been transferred here by time capsule.

Cornwell sank back in his chair. It was almost as if he were personally bereaved.

"It is a thing that is quite beyond my understanding. I simply can't conceive of a person capable of killing a child."

"It's hard for all of us, but what did you know about the boy? Were you well acquainted with him?"

"Not well. I've talked with him a few times. One night in particular, I was taking my walk and I dropped my pipe. It is hard for me to bend down, and Bruce passed as I was trying to pick it up. He got it for me and asked if he should walk along with me. I told him that I would be glad for his company. We didn't talk much, but he came clear to the house with me. I thought it showed rare kindness in one so young."

Morrison nodded in agreement and turned to Rosa Cornwell, who sat rigidly in a straight-backed chair.

"How about you, Mrs. Cornwell? Did you know Bruce?"

"I have other things to do. I don't waste my time talking with strange children."

"Rosa," Cornwell said sadly, "you couldn't mean that the way it sounds."

"You may be as sentimental as you wish, Luke, but I find the children around here both destructive and noisy. There is no reason for me to lie about it."

Morrison got to his feet. There was nothing further to be learned here. Cornwell might be able to walk the distance to where the boy had been found, but he didn't seem capable of carrying the boy too.

Mrs. Cornwell was strong enough to have done it, but he could see she wouldn't give him the time of day. Let alone any help proving she did.

Back at the sink, Seneca told him two shoe repairs she'd thought the work on the shoe might have been there. There was nothing on the tires.

New Farming Legislation Appears Dead

By B. L. Livingstone
WASHINGTON (AP) — New farm legislation appears dead for this session of Congress. The death sentence was pronounced yesterday by Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas in the wake of the second crushing setback suffered by agricultural legislation this year, and the third during this Congress.

"We have been up and down this hill as many times as I care to go this year," Rayburn declared. His pronouncement followed House defeat of a new farm bill going far in the direction of lower price supports sought by Secretary of Agriculture Benson, but opposed by a majority of House Republicans on the showdown vote yesterday.

Republican strategists had gambled in an all-or-nothing bid for House acceptance of a Senate-passed bill.

The Senate bill, backed by Benson and GOP leaders, went further in reducing farm price supports than the House version. It also junked the 25-year-old parity concept of calculating supports in favor of a new system based on a three-year average of market prices.

The House bill would have pegged future price supports for corn, cotton and rice to a floor of 65 per cent of parity as against 80 per cent.

Dulles Starts Planning Mid East Policy

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles is due back from Brazil day to speed work on development of new U.S. policies for the Middle East. These may aim at neutralizing the area in the cold war.

State Department officials said efforts are being made to develop practical proposals by which the unstable strategic area could be insulated from the Soviet-Western power struggle. Some referred to the process as trying to find a way to bring about a disengagement of the great powers in the Middle East.

Dulles left here Sunday on a flying trip to confer with Brazilian President Juscelino Kubitschek. He was expected to report promptly to President Eisenhower on his return.

Official sources in Rio de Janeiro said Dulles and Kubitschek agreed on a summit conference of the 21 American presidents to be held later this year. Detailed planning reportedly was left to the Washington ambassadors of the various nations in this hemisphere.

But of more immediate import is the preparation of a set of U.S. proposals for dealing with Middle Eastern problems.

The U. N. Security Council meets in New York today to arrange for an emergency meeting of the U. N. General Assembly. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev suggested this—and Eisenhower accepted it—instead of an immediate summit meeting within the Security Council.

At his news conference, Eisenhower said the United States is approaching the prospective Assembly meeting with two purposes in mind.

Their initial purpose, he said, would be to show that we had acted within the spirit of the United Nations in putting troops into Lebanon in mid-July to support that nation's independence.

The second purpose, the President said, would be "to put all our emphasis on constructive things to help the peoples of this area, to help them develop themselves, and to bring about a peace not only by the advances they make but by their certainty that we are doing it . . . for that reason."

Asked specifically about the idea of neutralizing the Middle East area, he replied that in answer to a question by a member of the press, he said that in anent asked, by Benson and contained in the Senate bill. It would also have prevented scheduled acreage cuts for cotton and rice next year.

But a combination of midwesterners from both parties, big city Democrats, and those who thought the House bill went either too far or not far enough, lined up to beat it.

The action was also viewed as more evidence of long apparent congressional resentment against the government farm subsidy during a period when the government is moving toward a 12 billion dollar budget deficit next year.

The farm bill came to the house floor yesterday under take-it-or-leave-it procedure requiring a two-thirds vote for passage. The vote was 210-188, a majority but still 54 votes short of the required two-thirds.

Following the House vote, Republican leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts called for reconsideration of the bill under more liberal voting procedures that would permit substitution of the Senate version.

Rayburn's statement, however, appeared to have foreclosed that action. Chairman Harold Coley (D-N.C.) of the Agriculture Committee joined Rayburn in opposing any further action.

Without new farm legislation, farmers face acreage cuts under the existing program if they want price supports.

Cotton is slated to drop from 17, 200,000 acres to 14,700,000 acres, and rice to around 1,100,000 acres or about 40 per cent under this year's allotment. Senate and House bills would have pegged cotton acreage at 18 million acres and rice at the 1958 level.

While the national cotton allotment will drop in 1959 the level of price supports could also go as high as 90 per cent of parity under the support formula. The level this year is around 81 per cent.

"Dear Bettina: Where else but among the working wives with whom you are daily associated? I'm sure your husband must have some business acquaintances, too, whose wives work and who would make congenial companions. I do not see where you get the time to be lonely with a full-time job and an apartment to look after. Aren't icipating a summit conference "we certainly were prepared to discuss such a thing."

Dulles, in his preparations for the now discarded summit meeting, had sought to focus attention on what he calls indirect aggression against independent nations by Soviet communism.

He has urged what he calls "a mantle of protection" by the U.N. around Lebanon so U. S. troops can be withdrawn.

Other possible actions he has considered proposing are creation of a U. N. monitoring group to report on radio stations from one country against the government of another, and formation of a high-mobility, relatively small U. N. force to protect a nation threatened by subversion.

DOROTHY DIX

Run Girl, While the Running's Good

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am engaged to marry a boy I deeply love, but his behavior is giving me doubts about his ability to make a good husband. Up to the time of our engagement, he was sweet and considerate. Once he put the ring on my finger, he became rude, mean and stingy. He even decries to me about how I should spend my salary. He wants me to put most of it in a joint bank account. If I spend a dollar for a manure he thinks I'm wildly extravagant and is furious. My family has always been opposed to the marriage.—Dorothy Dora.

Dear Dora: If ever a girl's guardian angel worked overtime to save her from a life of misery, yours it. If a boy makes you miserable before marriage, what in the world do you think he'll do when he puts the wedding ring on your finger? Get out girl, and don't spare the horses.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband and I are a very happily married couple in our mid-20's. Financial trouble forced me to work for the first years of our marriage, so we have postponed our family. We do hope to have one, though. However, all my friends have children and we have nothing in common, so slowly but surely I am losing all my pals. What can I do to gain new friends? Bettina.

you feeling just a little wistful over your homebody pals? Why not join the society of full-time homemakers even if it means a little financial juggling for a while?

Dear Dorothy Dix: Is it possible for people to fall in love through correspondence? I've been writing to a serviceman in Alaska for eight months. For several weeks now, he's been begging me to marry him. I think I love him, too, although we have never met. He won't be home for another year, but wants me to wait for him. Should I? Heather P.

Dear Heather: It's possible for a romance to blossom and bloom by mail, but don't make definite commitments until you've met the guy. An accomplished letter writer isn't always what he claims to be.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My mother seems to think it's a disgrace for a 24-year-old girl to remain unmarried. Although I'm perfectly capable of meeting boys on my own, she insists on arranging dates for me with the sons of her club friends. When young men do call, she embarrasses them—and me—by asking the most personal questions. This is one reason why boys don't come back the second time. How can I promote a "hands off" policy with her? Eileen.

Dear Eileen: Too bad you can't give mom a dollar and tell her to take in a movie when you're expecting gentlemen callers. What

Money, Trade Bills Set for House Action

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House was set today to check off two more major items on the end-of-session work list — a bill to extend the reciprocal trade program and a record peacetime defense money bill.

Quick House approval was expected for both bills. The Senate was likely to act on them soon.

A Senate-House conference committee agreed to extend the trade program four years and to give the President authority to cut tariffs up to 20 per cent during that period. This is somewhat less than President Eisenhower requested, but he appeared likely to go along.

A separate conference group voted to recommend 30½ billion dollars for defense in the current fiscal year. This is about 800 million more than Eisenhower asked.

In a heavy work day Wednesday, the House:

1. Defeated a farm bill which would have lowered some price supports. Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) said that as far as he is concerned that ends any hope for farm legislation at this session.

2. Voted 248-108 to boost the federal debt limit to 268 billion dollars.

both bills. The Senate was likely to act on them soon.

lars. The permanent ceiling now is 275 billion. Although Congress earlier in the session boosted that temporarily to 300 billion, the House bill would set a new permanent top of 265 billion, and would authorize the 268 billion ceiling until June 30, 1960. This would be the highest peacetime limit ever.

It passed by voice vote a bill requiring public reporting of employee pension and welfare plans, whether administered by employers or labor unions. A somewhat different bill has passed the Senate. A conference of both houses may be needed to work out differences.

In approving the four-year extension of the trade program, the conferees split the difference between the original House and Senate versions. The House, in line with administration requests, had voted for a five-year extension with authority to cut tariffs another 25 per cent in return for similar concessions from foreign nations. The Senate had passed a three-year extension with a 16 per cent limit on additional tariff cuts. The conferees cut out a Senate provision to limit cuts in any one year to 5 per cent.

On one important point, the compromise retains a House amendment that would permit Congress by a two-thirds vote, on both House and Senate, to override the President if he rejects Tariff Commission recommendations for import quotas or higher import duties to protect a home industry. The President now has discretionary authority in this field, with no congressional veto.

In shaping a compromise defense money bill, the conferees deleted some 440 million dollars previously voted by the Senate. This had been earmarked mostly for the Air Force.

The 39½-billion-dollar total would be broken down this way: Air Force — $17,877,024,000; Navy and Marines — $11,359,427,000; Army — $8,992,859,000; interservice activities — $839,900,000; office of the secretary of defense — $38,017,000.

TO THE VOTERS OF HEMPSTEAD COUNTY:

Dear Friends:

I am a candidate for CORONER of Hempstead County, Arkansas, and will appreciate your vote on August 12th.

The Coroner is called upon to pass on all unexplained deaths, and this usually involves a medical question. Most progressive counties elect a doctor to this office.

This is an important office, although many citizens overlook its importance in the excitement of an election. It is a position that demands the knowledge and experience of a physician.

I am not a politician, and know nothing about politics. It will be something of a personal sacrifice for me to serve as Coroner but I am willing to do so if the people will elect me because I know that some doctor is needed for this position.

Thanking you in advance for your consideration and vote, I am

Respectfully yours,

Monthly Meeting of Members of Prescott Fire Department
Members of the Fire Department held their regular monthly meeting Tuesday night at the Davis Cafe. The invocation was given by Walter Hirst. A fellowship period was carried on during the evening meal. Chief George Cunningham called the meeting to order. The regular routine of business was carried out. A number of comments were made about the recent fire drills and the contest held recently. Secretary Odell Garrett reported no fires during July. He said the members were ready to make the run and make a good fight but the old demon fire did not show his colors. The meeting adjourned until next month.

Rotarians See Film On Postal Service
The Prescott Rotary Club held their regular weekly meeting at the Lawson Hotel Aug. 5 at noon. The program was in charge of W. R. Hainbright. He introduced Postmaster J. H. Bemis and Woodrow (Tip) White as his guests. Mr. Bemis answered questions relative to the operation of the post office and Mr. White operated the machine showing the latest methods used to facilitate the dispatches and deliveries of the mail. The picture was very informative and showed many mechanical operations to handle the mails more efficiently. The Rotary Club is sponsoring Miss Amelia Harrell as queen of majorettes of the state of Arkansas to represent the state at the national contest at Indian Lake, Ohio. Miss Harrell won the state contest at Dardanelle. Miss Harrell is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. J. Harrell.

Marilyn's Hubby Wins Court Decision
WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals today struck down the contempt of Congress conviction of playwright Arthur Miller, 42, husband of actress Marilyn Monroe.

Miller was convicted of contempt in U.S. District Court here last year for refusing to tell the House Committee on Un-American Activities the names of Communist writers with whom he admittedly met in New York in 1949.

News Briefs

POPULAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP)—
Four members of a Texas family were killed in a head-on collision of their pickup and a transport truck on U.S. 57 five miles south of Popular Bluff today.

LITTLEFIELD, Tex. (AP)—
Another freight train blocked the crossing and the three girls started to crawl under it, as they often did, Josephine Rodriguez, 13, told officers Wednesday.

WASHINGTON (AP)—
Don't get excited folks. That strange light seen near the moon Wednesday night and early today was merely the planet Mars.

Observatory scientists made a quick check after newspaper switchboards across the country became swamped with calls inquiring about "the strange light near the moon."

And a spokesman for the Lick Observatory near San Francisco said Mrs. often comes in near alignment with the moon, causing unusual light effects.

DALLAS (AP)— Mrs. Agnes West, 78, said she dreamed "somebody was after me." She climbed out the window in her sleep and fell two stories to the ground. Police said an axwound broke her fall and she suffered only a broken arm.

Cardinals are appointed by the pope and hold office for life.

TO THE VOTERS OF HEMPSTEAD COUNTY:

One of the things that I have always been thankful for is the fact that I have pulled myself up by my own bootstraps. Hard work is no stranger to me. These same principles are guiding me in my race for County Judge. I am paying my own way and am making the fight by seeing every voter that I can. I have absolutely no special "connections" with any one person. I humbly solicit the help of ALL of the voters:

I renew my pledge to the people of the rural areas of Hempstead County and to the people of the City of Hope that as your County Judge I will take full advantage of all State and Federal programs and do all within my power to make you a public official about whom it can be said, "He has the interest of all of the people at heart."

Defendants Seek Disqualification

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Defendants in a suit which charges voting irregularities in the Garland County sheriff's race tried yesterday to get Circuit Judge C. Floyd Huff to disqualify himself from hearing the case.

The motion was filed by Sheriff Leonard Ellis, who won re-election in the July 29 Democratic primary, and Doyle Rowell, who withdrew from active campaigning before the primary.

They were named in a suit filed by the third candidate, radio station operator Clyde E. Wilson. The suit asked circuit court to declare him Democratic nominee instead of Ellis.

Huff said the motion was premature and that he wouldn't act on it.

Ellis got 6,143 votes, Wilson 5,942 and Rowell 175. The latter candidate withdrew too late to have his name taken off the ballot.

The motion contended that Huff supported Wilson in the race and that Wilson was backing Huff in the judge's bid for re-election in the Aug. 12 Democratic primary. Because of these factors, it said, Huff could not give an impartial decision.

Accident, Claims Arkansas Woman

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—A 19-year-old girl who formerly lived in Arkansas testified yesterday that she was trying to kill herself when her onetime sweetheart snatched her pistol and was shot fatally.

Blonde Belle Hope Johnson is on trial for murder in the death of Harold Kenneth Hoth, 25.

Both once lived in Russellville, Ark., and the snail they came west together to work as farm laborers. Miss Johnson said in Superior Court that she called Hoth to her automobile when she saw him at a drive-in restaurant at nearby Lamont June 1.

She told the jury that she asked Hoth if he "was through with me" and quoted him as saying, "Yes, You're just a sorry little bitch."

Miss Johnson said she told Hoth she was going to commit suicide and pulled a revolver from under the car seat.

"Harold laughed at me when I pointed the gun at my chest. He lunged for the gun and, while we were grabbing for it, the gun went off and hit him in the stomach twice."

Dist. Atty. Kit Nelson has asked a verdict of first degree murder, contending that the shooting was not accidental.

Youth Center Project

In the meetings held by the Hope Civic Improvement Association Thursday night, August 7, favorable reports were made on the Youth Center project which was launched several weeks ago.

For your information, a house which was given to the Foundation by Mr. Alex H. Washburn, Editor of the Hope Star, and a regular, very generous contributor to the Association, has been moved to the City Park site of the Youth Center. This house will be renovated and used as a temporary Center while plans are being completed for the proposed building.

With a beginning such as the committee has made, there should be no doubt in anybody's mind that we mean business. This project is badly in need of your financial support. Why not make up your minds to make your contribution now and make it as generous as possible. These are our children, and nobody should be more interested in their well-being than we are. Give until it hurts.

Pledge sheet carriers will contact you. Don't refuse them.

U.S. Envoy

British colony at the southern end of the Red Sea.

They were the first major contingent sent to reinforce the paratroopers flown from Cyprus to Amman July 17.

While the Arab nationalist leader was administering his measures, the United States, his military leader was off in Saudi Arabia on a surprise mission to King Saud, whose country produces vast amounts of oil for the West from American-developed wells.

Informal sources said the President of the United Arab Republic was angered by three recent American actions in particular:

1. Landing of U.S. troop reinforcements in Lebanon after the election of Gen. Fuad Shihab as a compromise president and Murphy's statement on arrival in Cairo that there are no present plans for an American withdrawal from Lebanon.
2. Washington's insistence, in agreeing to a U.N. Assembly session on the Middle East, on keeping alive its charges that the U.A.R. is fomenting trouble in Lebanon.
3. Secretary of State Dulles' statement that Nasser is not a true Arab nationalist but a power-seeker using subversion, intrigue and Soviet help to extend his domain.

In his isolated conference with Murphy, the President of the United Arab Republic undoubtedly followed up his show of piety with a sharp attack on U.S. policy in the Middle East. There were smiles all around, however, when the conference posed for photographers before they got down to talking.

Sitting in with Nasser were his chief political adviser, Ali Sabry, and Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi. U.S. Ambassador Raymond Hare, who had been kept waiting 25 minutes by Fawzi earlier in the day, accompanied Murphy to the meeting in Nasser's study.

Meanwhile, the semi-official Middle East News Agency reported that Field Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer, the military commander of the U.A.R., had flown to visit Saud at the monarch's summer palace.

Not long ago Nasser was accusing Saud of financing a plot to assassinate him. But recently the Arabian King has drawn no mention in the Egyptian press. The soft-pedaling followed the rise to power of Crown Prince Faisal, who forced his older brother to name him premier. Faisal, who is believed to be more friendly toward Nasser than Saud, sat in on the talks with Amer.

The American supply airlift from Cyprus to British forces in Jordan resumed Wednesday night after Israel agreed anew to allow British-American flights across her territory.

A FISH NET

HIM

Every good fisherman studies the habits of fish. He is familiar with their favorite bait, their haunts, their hiding places. This affords him an opportunity to use his net for a good haul. The Lord said for us to be fishers of men...to catch souls. "Come ye after me and I will make you fishers..." spoke the greatest fisherman of all to these men with the net. They were not acquainted with the deep holes, the pitfalls nor the sunning grounds. They were not having much luck catching fish because no one can do what he doesn't know how to do. But the Master showed them and their 'catches' were in abundance. THEY wanted to catch fish but what do YOU want most out of life? Jesus says He can satisfy your wants, — the deepest hungers of men's hearts. Then quench the thirst of your warped soul through worship at your church Sunday. Learn how to use your net to catch souls for God.
